Haunted!

The human tenements is often hauntedto the grievous discomfort of its possessorby those malignant spirits, constipation and ousness. But the abominable pair may be speedily driven out with the potent help of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters This gental alterative, while it relieves the bowels and regulates the fiver, never, as a drastic purgative dose, produces violect effects and eakers the intestines. On the contrary. the action of the Bitters is precisely analog ous to an effort of nature seeking to resume her proper functions. This furnishes pretty sive evidence that it is better to use persusive means, so to speak, than to deavor to coerce nature to a return duty Violent remedies produce only a temporary effect, followed by a buriful reaction. allowed. indigestion, malarial and kidney complaints, rheumatism and pervousness, the Bitters take highest rank among remedies of the philosophic school

IMPORTANT POSITION.

Burrows To Be Chairman of Finance Committee.

ARBITRATOR OF REVENUE BILLS.

High Honor Conferred Upon the State of Michigan and the Reason - Beautiful Room Occupied by Senator McMillan as Chairman of the Committee of the District of Columbia - Other Michigan Men at the Capital - Some Tariff Gossip.

Washington, March 30 .- Senator Burrows will be made a member of the committee on finance as soon as the Republicans have a sufficient number of senators present to reorganize the upper branch of congress. The committee on finance is regarded as the most important committee of the senate from a business standpoint, and all senators seek the honor of membership there. During the greater part of his public service, covering a period of nearly thirty years, Hon. John Sherman was a member of that committee.

The committee on finance has charge of all revenue measures which come from the house of representatives, and is practically the arbitrator of all measures effecting the revenues of the government. The retirement of Senator Sherman from this important committee resulted in the declared aspiration of a number of Republican senators to secure their own selection to fill that vacancy. It has been determined, how-ever, by the majority of Republican senators to give this important position to Senator Burrows, because of his long experience in the house of representatives where, as a member of the committee on ways and means, he became exceptionally familiar with the revenue precedents in our history. This high honor is to be conferred upon the state of Michigan because of the sagacity of the people who have kept continuously in public life a man worthy of their confidence and esteem.

Handsome Committee Room. In the handsome marble building on Capitol hill the most beautiful room is that set apart for the use of the committee on the District of Columbia. The celebrated artist, Brumedi, who painted the canopy of the Capitol dome and decorated all the walls of the senate wing of the Capitol, devoted more attention to the decoration of the room of the committee on the District of Columbia than to any other part of the building.

Senator McMillan of Michigan is chairman of the committee of the District of Columbia, and, therefore, the occupant of this beautiful room, which is handsomely furnished. The senator, in his capacity as chairman of that committee, is doing great work for the future as well as for the present in directing and controlling the proposed measures of legislation for the District of Columbia. Since he has been chairman of that committee Senator McMillan has prevented many great wrongs which were contemplated by greedy corporations, and has brought about many reforms for the government of the national capital.

Both Michigan senators are fortunate in having for their private secretaries young men of experience and superior sagacity. Henry M. Rose, who is assoclated with Senator Burrows, is one of best-known newspaper men in Michigan, and is most highly esteemed by those who know him best in his Grand Rapids home. He was a strong the election of Mr. Burrows to the senas the senator is in public life.

Charles Moore was for a number of cessful newspaper workers in Detroit, and for some time Washington correspondent of the Detroit Tribune. He is thoroughly familiar with Michigan men and affairs, and his serivces are of great value to Senator McMillan, to whose fortunes he is devotedly attached..

Cord ally Received. There is probably no man in all Mich-Igan sufficiently prominent to have publie business in Washington with whom Charles Moore and Henry Rose are not acquainted; consequently, all visiting Wolverines (and their name is legion) have been graciously and cordially received with warm welcome in the com-mittee room of the Michigan senators, either by the statesmen themselves or by their prevate secretaries.

Frank H. Hosford is another Mich!gan newspaper man who has achieved prominence and distinction in the national capital. He is a nature! born politician. He came here eight years ago for the Detroit Free Press, and at the beginning of the Forty-Second congress he was made tally cleris of the house of representatives at a salary of $2,000 a year, and held the position for four years. He has been secretary of the Democratic state central committeee for a number of years, and was a leading light in the Democratic headquarters at Chicago during the last quadrennial presidential campaign.

Although a Democrat of Democrats, Hosford is such a jolly good fellow that he is popular with all the Republicans from Michigan, and is a leading light in the Michigan State association. He is a welcome visitor at all of the committee rooms and in all the homes of Michigan people.

The Michigan State aspelation comprises a memberelist of more than 500 dustries, and see how the senate will people now in Washington, who were at one time resident in Michigan. The senators and representatives are receiving letters from Michigan grow-ers and seed dealers asking that the distribution of seed by the department of agriculture be discontinued. It will be difficult to induce the congress to pass an act abolishing the seed bureau. In fact, it cannot be done. There is too much patronage back of it.

Fate of the Dingley Bill.

The Dingley bill, which will pass the house of representatives on March 31, will not become a law. A tariff bill will be enacted by the Fifty-fifth congress during the extraordinary session, but it will be a different bill from that which is now about to be discussed and passed by the lower branch of congress. The Mills bill of 1888, which did not become a law, was so manipulated by the sen-ate that if it had been enacted it would have been a bili altogether different from that which passed the house. The McKinley bill, when it was finally passed, was not the original bill. On the contrary, the senate gave it all its best features, including the reciprocity clause. The Wilson bill of 1894 was so amended in the senate that it lost all of its original characteristics.

The pending Dingley bill will dissected by the senate until scarcely an original tissue remains. The bill will be reported to the senate on April 1. All Fool's day, and the vice president will immediately refer it to the committee on finance. In that committee it will remain until all the members of congress have had ample time to go through it, paragraph by paragraph, and line by line. The senate cannot get at the bill until the committee sees fit to report it. Six weeks or more the bill will be in the hands of the eleven members of that committee, and they will do with it as they please. In the meantime, all of the parties interested in the proposed duties will appear in Washington and make themselves heard, if not felt. Whether the committee will give public hearings or not, remains to be determined. The impression at present is that they will not.

The Hearings on the Tariff. As a matter of fact it is expensive nonsense for parties interested in particular schedules to appear before the committee on ways and means or the committee on finance and make argument in favor of their schemes. Just for the purpose of creating a public impression of a disposition to be fair, the committee gives public hearings. Then, after the set time has passed, the members of the committee close their doors, have guardians on the outside to prevent interruptions and proceed to do business, as if no hearings had been given or even contemplated.

It is arrant folly to link the name of Vice President Hobart with any scheme to force the passage of the bill through the senate. Nobody is so powerless in the senate as its presiding officer. has no vote, except when a tie is recorded. He cannot make rules, nor hasten business. He is a figurehead for the enforcement of rules, which are made by the senate, and that is all. No what he may desire to accomplish, he is tongue-tied and without in-

Mark Hanna Will Not Force Matters, $1 It is extreme folly to talk of Mark Hanna forcing things. He is simply a new senator, and holds his position by appointment of the governor of his factor in the contest which resulted in state. He is not a member of the committee on finance, and will receive but ate, and will remain with him as long little consideration from that committee. Of course, there will be as low raies as any line out of Owosso and others interested in the work, because time superior to any every senator will have his say with the members of the committee and upon the floor of the senate. But the bill will ultimately be formulated by Senator Allison of Iowa, Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, and Benator Vest of Missouri. That tells the whole story. Allison and Aldrich will attend to the work for the Republicans, and Senator Vest will attend to the work for the Democrats, and when they get through they can say, as Sherman and General Johnston said in North Carolina; "Whatever conclusions are reached by us will be regarded as good law." bill which these three men will formulate in the committee on finance will be ratified by the full committee, and when it is reported to the senate, it will be debated and amended in some particulars. Substantially as they formulate, however, it will be passed by the The Action of the House.

Then it will go to the house of repre-sentatives, and a conference committoe will be appointed.
